Many Cases of Scarlet Fever

Disease Prevalent in Hudson River Valley Towns—Kingston Has 14 New Cases This Month, but All Reported Are Mild.

An epidemic of scarlet fever has been sweeping the Hudson river valley towns since the first of the year, and Kingston has not escaped, although it is said that not as many cases of the disease have been reported here as in other valley towns. In January there were 15 cases of the disease reported in Kingston, and Health Officer Daniel Connelly said today that so far this month 14 cases had been reported.

All but three of the January cases have recovered and have been released from quarantine, making a total of 17 cases actually under quarantine in Kingston at the present time.

All of the cases reported this month in the city are mild in nature and no deaths from the disease have occurred here this year.

Last month there were seven cases of diphtheria reported in Kingston and this month but one case has been reported. All of the cases reported had never received the toxin antitoxin treatment, according to Health Officer Connelly.

The changeable weather conditions that have existed this year, with first a spell of mild weather followed by a cold wave, has caused a large number of cases of grip and sore throats in Kingston. It would seem that hardly a resident of the city has been immune from catching a cold this winter.

There has been considerable loose talk about the city schools being closed, but that action is not contemplated as the health officer does not believe the situation warrants it.

The principal waterway improvement included in the bill were a $11,200,000 authorization for improving the Hudson river channel from New York city to Albany, N. Y.; a $3,000,000 intra coastal canal between New Orleans and Galveston Bay, Texas; and a $6,500,000 improvement to Los Angeles harbor.

RETIREES AFTER A SERVICE OF NEARLY FIFTY YEARS

Frank H. Meyer of Market street, Saugerties, who has been engaged in connection with the Saugerties and New York steamboat lines for a period of nearly fifty years in various capacities, as clerk, steward and purser, and the past few years as agent on the dock in New York city, has tendered his resignation and will retire from active duty with the company. Mr. Meyer has just rounded out three score and ten years and feels that his half century of service entitles him to a well earned rest. Mr. Meyer began boating with the late Captain John Osterhout of the cruise ship steamer Ansonia and his record shows that he has not been absent from his post during all these years of service with the steamboat line.

Eight of them managed to get into boats but Dunskey and Cole were seen no more.

King George Must Stay Indoors

By Telegram to The Freeman. London, Feb. 17.—King George was permitted to leave his bed today but ordered to stay within the palace, after a visit from Colonel Sir John Howat, royal physician.

The ruler showed first signs of feverishness Saturday when, after making two speeches in the morning, he was obliged to cancel an engagement to attend the English-Irish football in the afternoon.

A cold developing Sunday, his physicians advised that he go to bed and cancel all engagements.

King George is suffering from bronchitis, due to influenza, it was officially announced today at Buckingham Palace.

The official bulletin was issued at 2 o'clock this afternoon and was signed by three physicians. The bulletin added:

"In spite of a restless night, His Majesty's condition is satisfactory."

The Prince of Wales visited the king and had luncheon at the palace.

The decision of physicians to issue a bulletin this afternoon when they had decided in the morning a bulletin would be unnecessary, led to the conclusion that the king's illness was more serious than at first believed.

The fact, however, that three physicians were attending the king, was not significant. All are members of the king's medical staff. They are Sir Stanley Hewitt, throat and lung specialist; Sir Milson Rees and Lord Dawson of Penn.

The chief concern aroused by the king's illness is that his constitution is not exceedingly strong.

Apparently with the purpose of reassuring the people that the king's condition was not serious, Queen Mary tonight attended a concert by Paderewski.

SAUGERTIES RECEIVE KANSAS COTTONTAIL RABBITS

The Saugerties Fish and Game Club on Saturday and also today received a consignment of cottontail rabbits from Kansas. These rabbits numbered about 300 and upon arrival here, about seven were dead. These rabbits will be liberated in this vicinity by the club who are seeking to aid in stocking this section with game. The club are expecting a number of pheasants and pheasant eggs later, and have made application for quail, woodcock trout and other gamebirds. Local sportsmen should support the club in its effort to make hunting and fishing in this vicinity of the right kind.—Saugerties Post.

Keep Aviation as An Auxiliary

Theodore Roosevelt Advises Congressional Committee That No Battle Will Ever Be Fought Out Alone in the Air.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Essaying the role of prophet, Theodore Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, told the house aircraft investigation committee today that "no battle will ever be fought out alone in the air," and advocated keeping aviation "an auxiliary service."

Roosevelt opposed a unified air service, such as Brig-General William Mitchell proposes, saying "it would be a very great mistake."

Before two different congressional committees the big guns on both sides of the present aircraft controversy swung into action again today.

Brig-General William Mitchell, whose grave charges against the nation's air defenses gave the impetus to the present hearings, defended his policy of a unified air service before the house military affairs committee. Representatives of the war and navy departments told the special aircraft investigating committee what preparations have been made to defend this nation against an air attack.

Present before the same committee hearing Mitchell was Former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt, who appeared to oppose the Curry bill, which would establish a separate air service under a cabinet head, such as the "flying general" advocated.

The action of the aircraft committee in summoning army and navy officers to explain the condition of the nation's air defenses was interpreted as the first indication of congressional alarm over the possibility of an air attack. This anxiety is believed to have arisen from testimony given behind closed doors by witnesses who claimed foreign nations were far outdistancing the United States in the development of bombing, aircraft carriers and other aids to air attack.

Mitchell Hits at Foes.

Hitting back at his foes and critics, Brig-General William Mitchell, assistant chief of army air service, appeared again before the house aircraft investigating committee, and declared that a group of enemy airplanes could "wipe out New York city in a day."

Mitchell gave this opinion to one committee almost at the same time that Theodore Roosevelt was telling another committee that aircraft was a supplementary arm of national defense, and should be kept that way.

Mitchell vigorously denied that his advocacy of a unified air service was inspired by hope of personal reward or advancement.

"Do you hope for personal reward," bluntly asked Representative McKenzie, Republican of Illinois, chairman.

"No," snapped Mitchell. "I only want to have America realize the vital importance of airplanes as a unit of offense and defense."

"Aviation is the only independent fighting forces in the United States," he went on. "For defensive work along the coast and frontier, it is paramount over all armed forces."

"Out at sea, a battleship is a pitiful target for the air. An entrenched army would be of equally impotent value against air craft."

Mitchell linked the airplane and submarine as the first line of defense and attack.

Coastal Cities Vulnerable.

American coastal cities would be absolutely vulnerable to air attack, he said.

"Why," he added, "a group of aircraft could wipe out New York in a day. The only defense would be from the air."

Mitchell drew a vivid picture of future air battles, describing great mother dirigibles carrying great numbers of small, attacking airplanes.

"Those ships we have up at Lakehurst (Shenandoah and Los Angeles) are toys," said Mitchell.

Roosevelt, who preceded Mitchell on the stand, had declared no air plane could cruise far enough from enemy camps to menace American cities.

"Why, great fleets of aircraft could be sent over and attack us, and we could not stop it except from the air," said Mitchell.

"We have practically no naval air service and any battleship that can be built can be destroyed by air craft. A unified air service will help the navy, not hurt it."

A sea invasion of England is almost impossible. The British do not fear a sea invasion because of airplanes, mines and submarines. The only attack they fear is from the air, and a unified air ministry has been charged with taking precautions against that. "We should do the same thing in America."

Highest January Price for Milk

Received By Dairymen's League
Farmers in History of Pool—Milk
Price Doubles Butter Price—New Block of Certificates.

The Dairymen's League announces a gross pool price of $2.50 for January milk. This is the highest January price in the history of the pool. The only deductions on the statements of the month are for expenses amounting to 3 1/2¢, which makes the net pool price and also the cash distribution $2.415. With the exception of one month, namely December, 1922, this is the highest cash distribution in the history of the pool. For the first time in the history of the pool the deduction for certificates of indebtedness is omitted. Commenting on this league of officials declare that it was felt advisable to omit this deduction because of the improved financial condition of the association due to the recent sale of the league's evaporated milk operations. They also add that the league's present policy of purchasing from time to time blocks of the certificates of indebtedness is constantly strengthening the finances of the association by relieving the active membership of the liability of the securities thus purchased.

The announcement of this very favorable January price following what was a record price for December has added to the increasing optimism of pool dairymen over their outlook for the future. They point to the fact that this is the first time since 1911 that the January price of milk has not dropped below the December price and they say this is not just a happenstance but is one of the direct benefits of having an organization that can stabilize the markets. That the January price is amply justified, they declare, it is necessary only to look over the increasing cost of milk production and the upward trend of prices on many other farm commodities. This is especially true of dairy feeds which the league farmer as well as other dairymen of the east have to buy in large quantities.

According to the announcement the net pool and cash price of $2.41 is $1.20 above the average butter value of 100 pounds of 3% milk for the month of January and that for the first time in the history of the milk business so far as there are any records, dairymen have received for their milk practically twice what it was worth as butter. The average butter value for 100 pounds of 3% milk for January was $1.215.

League dairymen point to this as another direct benefit of their organization. In the pre-league days dealers were in the habit of basing their prices to farmers on the prevailing prices of butter. The comparison of this spread of $1.20 between butter and milk prices for the month of January with this same spread which existed for the ten year period 1906 to 1916 shows that the average spread between fluid milk prices and butter prices during the ten year period mentioned based on 100 pounds of 3 per cent milk was 41 cents. The average price of 3 per cent milk during the same period was $1.36.

This good news on the January price and recent announcements that February prices would probably remain at the same level, coming as it does at the beginning of the annual withdrawal period of the league, is very timely to result, poolers declare, in more applications for new contracts during the next few months than at any similar period in league history. Some of the more optimistic even prophesy that the applications for new contracts before April 1 will more than offset the number of withdrawals during the present month.

On this point recent announcements made by the association indicate that the league intends to limit its milk supply in proportion to the needs of its fluid market, thus reducing its surplus problem to a minimum. This means that applications for new contracts from dairymen will be carefully selected on the basis of their value to the producers who belong to the association, in developing their fluid markets.

Latest announcements from the league's new York office are to the effect that only a normal number of withdrawals are expected.

Certificates of indebtedness belonging to Series "A" due in 1927, whose numbers end with the numeral "1," are now being purchased by the treasurer of the association at the New York office. The offer to purchase this block will close on March 7. For such certificates the association pays $5 per cent with accrued interest to February 1.

TELL-TALE DETAILS.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Footwear has been of great importance for many seasons, not that it should not have always been, but unquestionably women have a greater variety of shoes and spend considerable time and money contriving to have them carry out the ensemble idea.

Flesh stockings, and such shades as at. In a general sense so classified, are a great time-saver for the women who hurry to change frocks between social engagements. Blonde satin slippers are another boom to them, since they are worn now with almost every type of dress.

While one finds some tendency to match the stockings to the frock, particularly when it is a high-colored one for evening, the smartest effect, in the opinion of many, is to match the slippers with the frock, wearing them with light stockings. The only way to assure a good match is to have white satin slippers dyed to match the gown. Novelty strap effects, while still seen, have given way to a great extent to one-strap slippers, with rosettes or buckles at one side, or to the opera pump.

Among the earring novelties which have captured the fancy of many visitors in Havana this winter, are huge shining balls of silver or gold suspended from a matching chain. These are to be had from small to extremely large balls, and they are, of course, frequently matched up with chokers.

Tapestry handbags, mounted on interesting antique frames, are in general favor, as are also the finely beaded bags in tapestry design. The underarm bag an old favorite, has appeared in new guises for evening use.

HOPPE NOW LEADING

CANNEFAX 240 TO 227

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 17.—Having uncovered the best billiards either champion has shown since the start of the match in winning the third and fourth blocks, Willie Hoppe, balk line king, today made ready for the fifth block of his three cushion match with Champion Bob Cannefax in a trenched behind a lead of 210 to 227. The sudden shift in honors from Cannefax to Hoppe created a small sensation in billiard ranks and the Friars Club was prepared to play host to a capacity house for the fifth and sixth blocks this afternoon and tonight.
The match is to go six hundred points, and unofficially, will decide the champion of the world at the angle game.

Hoppe trailed by 120 to 100 when he entered the third block yesterday but playing consistently and even brilliantly at times, won the third block, 65 to 60, and in the evening fairly buried Cannefax under a score of 75 to 47.
The balk line champion abandoned his conservative, safely first game of the first two blocks and went after every point without hesitancy. His best run was six Cannefax had a seven, but lacked Hoppe's consistency.

Detroit Manager Very Hopeful

But Won't Assert He Will Win Pennant—Cobb Declares His Young Pitchers Will Give Trouble.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Augusta, Ga., Feb. 17.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, refused to go into estimates over the chances of his team in the American League race this year, but does remark that he hoped to give the league considerable run for its money.

Cobb, who won no little renown as a man who would take almost any kind of a chance when he was playing baseball under another man, has developed into a cautious cuss when it comes to talking about pennants.

"I won't predict that the Tigers will win a pennant," he told International News Service, "but I will say that I think the Tigers have a chance," and then added with some of his old-time speed "that is, if we don't run into a lot of injuries."

Ty harked back through the agonies of the last three years, when Tiger teams, seemingly driving along under considerable momentum, paused with a loud thump because of injuries here and there. He referred particularly to the disastrous accident which befell Bunny Brief at the tag end of the last campaign, just when Brief was hitting a pinch-slugging stride that was standing out as a fine example to ambitious young men.

"A team may look mighty good when it is going along and it may have a lot of good ball players," Cobb said, "but the fact of the matter is that experience as well as ability must be present when a team is going to win a pennant. Our team is young. True, they are fighters and as game as they come. Just the same, I wouldn't predict too much until they have been seasoned. We'll wait and see what they look like after they get into some real hard action and then it will be time to predict something."

"We have very few new players. Those we have will be given every opportunity to make the grade."

"Much attention is to be given to these young pitchers who served us so well last year. Our pitching staff is no longer to be looked upon with scorn by other clubs."

Cobb revealed that he is looking for someone to understudy his own aging legs.

"I'll be out there playing when the bell rings," he said, "but I don't intend to play through every game every day if I don't feel well up to it. I'm not as young as I used to be, you know. If I feel myself getting tired I'll get on to the bench and let someone else have a crack at it."

Griffith to Pay Price of Success

Walter Johnson a Holdout For First Time. Wants $25,000—Ruel, Peckinpaugh and McNeely Among Others in "The Holdup."
(By Davis J. Walsh.)
By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 17.—According to the best and most recent advice, Clark Griffith is beginning to pay the first installment on the price of success, an ante that all pennant winners of recent years, particularly the New York Yankees, have been forced to meet.

The good word from the fried ham belt is to the effect that Walter Johnson has come out in the open as a holdout for the first time in his career and wants $25,000, no less, for another season under the Senatorial yoke. Walter is merely one of several of Mr. Griffith's young men obsessed with expensive ideas.

Muddy Ruel, star catcher; Roger Peckinpaugh, short stop; and Earl McNeely, outfielder, are among those who live only to harry Mr. Griffith with thoughts of foreclosure of the mortgage on the old homestead. Even Stanley Harris, the boy manager, put the financial slug on Clark at a very early moment and possibly it was Harris' initial success that inspired the others, if a ball player ever needs monetary inspiration.

It is the old army game, to wit: "You got yours, now give me mine." And, as such, it is entirely justified, according to the standards of human instinct. Yet, if you happen to be looking in through the paymaster's window, the justification might seem slightly out of focus.

Johnson, for instance, is not worth $25,000 as he stands today. He is nearly at the end of his rope and might not last another season as a headliner. So much for the commercial side of it. But taking the matter from its human angle, it is a fact that Johnson never got the money he deserved, during the years he pitched his arm off for Griffith. He wants it now, particularly since his cherished ambition to buy a minor league club was thwarted.

It is understood that Johnson has become slightly miffed because Griffith didn't rush to the rescue with assistance in the project. However, one doesn't buy the cleaver for the gent with designs upon one's right arm.

Peckinpaugh's case is similar to Johnson's. Roger came through for Griffith last season after several years of mediocrity. But his future hangs in the balance. He also is slightly aged and no one knows whether his breakdown in the last world series will be repeated this season. He, of course, is entitled to an increase. So is Muddy Ruel and in fact, every regular on a championship team. The size of the increase forms the difficulty. Ruel should get a good one. Never a heavily paid young man, he developed into what many critics hailed as the best catcher in baseball during 1924 and is just about due to collect dividends.

As for McNeely, it looks as though he has placed an immoderate value on a series winning base hit that only became finite because a conventional stone caused a bad bound.

"Red" Grange Turns Down Nice Contract
Harold "Red" Grange, all-American football star, University of Illinois, definitely turned down a five weeks' screen contract which would net him $25,000 next summer. He will stick to the ice business, he told representatives of a New York movie firm seeking his services.
Grange gave as his reason for turning down the sensational offer that it would violate the spirit of amateur sports.
Grange's meteoric career on the gridiron has one more year to run.

Benny Leonard Retires
Peckinpaugh's case is similar to Johnson's. Roger came through for Griffith last season after several years of mediocrity. But his future hangs in the balance. Nurmi's Stride Changed Since Olympic Contests
The flying feet of the phantom Finn, Paavo Nurmi, which have been kicking over world records since his arrival in America, are no longer functioning as they did in the Olympic games.
His stride has been slightly modified, probably to meet indoor track conditions.
This is the observation of Amos Alonzo Stagg, director of athletics at the University of Chicago, who studied the Finn's running form in Paris last summer.
Nurmi now runs more on the balls of his feet than he did in outdoor competition. Stagg observed, when the Finnish flash broke the world's indoor record for the mile and three-quarters, defeating Jole Ray, American champion miller.
Stagg also noted that Nurmi's knee action was the most noticeable thing about his stride, which he said resembled that of a man running down hill. He does not pull for ground and his arms are bent and carried high. There is a sharp rebound when his feet strike the boards and his strong knee springs delivers a snap and follow through that threw the feet higher behind him than is true of other runners.
